

Attention! Stationery Studio® and BrainCogs® Software Users Share Your Ideas and Receive “Stories That Matter”

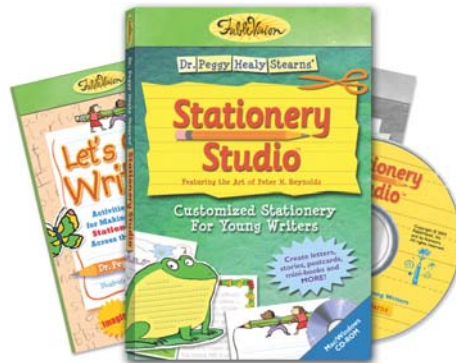

Have you been creating your own lesson plans for Stationery Studio or BrainCogs software to use in your classroom, lab, or learning environment? Would you like to share your ideas and see what other teachers have created?

FableVision is accepting teacher-written lesson plans and detailed extension activity submissions for its product websites*. Lesson Plans should include grade level, curriculum focus if any (i.e. how to apply BrainCogs to Math), and other relevant information on the students you are teaching (i.e. gifted and talented, learning difficulties, ESL, etc).

Every teacher who submits his/her work will receive a free DVD, “Stories that Matter, Stories that Move” collection of animated films written and directed by FableVision’s CEO, Author/Illustrator Peter H. Reynolds (The North Star, The Dot, Ish). [Educator value $59.95].

Email Entry Instructions: Please send along your name, school/institution name and address, daytime telephone, email address, and lesson plans (attached or within body of email) to dawn@fablevision.com. Entries must be received by June 30, 2005.

Note: Submission of content grants FableVision the right to duplicate and use this material on their product website, publications, future product content upgrades, and for product promotional purposes. If materials are used, you will receive a credit with your name and school listed.*
